FROM ADDRESS PARK PLAZA
HER-AMER FEB 23, 1973 12b.

The following is a capsuled history of the Park Plaza project:

— May 30, 1970 — Mayor White announced a "$300 million" plan for the long-term rebuilding of a 35-acre site, including Park sq. and the adjoining Combat Zone. White said the project would be done with private capital and dubbed the development as "Park Plaza."

— June 19, 1970 — The Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA) voted to declare the 35-acre site of the proposed Park Plaza as "deteriorated" and "decadent," paving the way for the development.

— March 22, 1971 — Mayor White re-announced the Park Plaza development as a $220 million project. It is announced that Boston Urban Associates will tentatively be the principal developer.

— July 16, 1971 — BRA approved the Park Plaza plan and sent it to the Boston City Council and the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA).

CONT...

BOST. ADDRESS PARK PLAZA.

12c.

— Sept. 21, 1971 — Boston City Council Urban Development Committee began a series of public hearings on Park Plaza, now described as a $260 million project.

— Dec. 8, 1971 — The Boston City Council approved the Park Plaza project on a 7-2 vote. Councilmen Christopher A. Iannella and Albert L. (Dapper) O'Neil are opposed.

— April 11-14, 1972 — Hearings on the Park Plaza project are held in Faneuil Hall by the State Department of Community Affairs, with acting DCA director E. Williams Richardson presiding.

— May 4, 1972 — Miles Mahoney, former deputy executive director of the Philadelphia Housing Authority, is sworn in as head of the DCA.

— June 9, 1972 — Mahoney and the DCA rejected the Park Plaza project. Proponents of the plan immediately vow to renew the fight.

CONT...

BOST. ADDRESS PARK PLAZA.

12d.

— June-November, 1972 — Negotiations are carried out between the Boston Redevelopment Authority, the DCA and others to draw up an acceptable new Park Plaza plan.

— Nov. 28, 1972 — A second Park Plaza plan is submitted to the DCA.

— December, 1972-February, 1973 — The Park Plaza "pot" continued to boil, and the big question is, will he (Mahoney) or won't he approve the plan?

— Feb. 22, 1973 — Mahoney rejected the Park Plaza plan for a second time and announced his resignation, effective March 1.
